

I am writing to express my strong opposition to allowing the use of cell phones in flight. There is no certainty that it will not interfere with navigation devices. It will greatly add to inflight tension. Terrorists may be able to use the technology as well as regular passengers. Phones are already available for those needing to use them. It will make the difficult jobs of flight attendants even more difficult. As a frequent flyer I can assure you there is no place for cell phones on airplanes.

Sincerely ,
Glen Gaither
